London Borough of Hillingdon ELECTIVE HOME EDUCATION

Part 1

Introduction

1.1 Elective home education is where parents or guardians decide to provide education for their children at home instead of sending them to school. It is not home tuition provided by a local authority or where a local authority provides education otherwise than at a school.

This policy is addressed towards parents of electively home educated children, Local Authority officers, OFSTED, LSCB (Local Safeguarding Childrens Board) partners including Health, Housing, Police, Social Care and Third Sector professionals and Schools and Academies.

For the purpose of this policy the definition of a parent (section 576 Education Act 1996) is a parent of the child or anyone who has parental responsibility or care of the child.

The policy is written with regard to the current Elective Home Education Guidelines for Local Authorities and should be read in conjunction with 'Ensuring Children's Rights to Education'. These policies can be downloaded from the links below:

<https://www.education.gov.uk/publications/standard/publicationDetail/Page1/DFES-00529-2007>

<https://www.education.gov.uk/schools/pupilsupport/parents/involvement/homeeducation/a0073367/elective-home-education-guidelines>

1.2 Home-educated children are those who, for a range of reasons, are being educated at home and in the community by parents, guardians, carers or tutors, and are not registered full time at mainstream schools, special schools, Pupil Referral Units (PRUs), colleges, children's homes with education facilities or education facilities provided by independent fostering agencies. Parents have a legal duty to ensure their children receive a suitable education, but are not obliged to send them to school.

1.3 The purpose of this policy is to encourage Hillingdon and home educating parents to work together to develop trust, mutual respect and a positive relationship that functions in the best educational interests of the child. The guidelines recognise that elective home education is a key aspect of parental choice and therefore the aim of this policy is to encourage good practice in relationships between Hillingdon and home educators by clearly setting out the legislative position, and by providing advice on the roles and responsibilities of Hillingdon and parents in relation to children who are educated at home. In doing this, Hillingdon recognises that parents who choose Home Education for their children take on a great commitment and for the majority these children have excellent experiences.

Reasons for Elective Home Education

1.4 Parents may opt for home education for various reasons. The reasons should not, in themselves, have a bearing on Hillingdon's treatment of home-educating families since Hillingdon's primary interest lies in how well the parents are providing education for their children at home and not their reason for doing so. The following reasons for home-educating are common but by no means exhaustive:

- Distance or access to a local school
- Religious or cultural beliefs
- Philosophical or ideological views
- Dissatisfaction with the system
- As a short term intervention for a particular reason
- A child's unwillingness or inability to go to school

1.5 When a parent offers an account of their dissatisfaction with the public system of education provision, Hillingdon may wish to use this information as part of its ongoing supervision of specific problems in certain areas.

Part 2

The law relating to Elective Home Education

2.1 All children have a fundamental right to education (Article 28 United Nations Convention of the Rights of the Child)

2.2 The responsibility for a child's education rests with their parents. In England, in accordance with Section 8 of the Education Act 1996, education is compulsory (for children aged 5 to 16), but schooling is not.

2.3 Article 2 of Protocol 1 of the European Convention on Human Rights states that:

No person shall be denied the right to education. In the exercise of any functions which it assumes in relation to education and to teaching, the State shall respect the right of parents to ensure such education and teaching is in conformity with their own religious and philosophical convictions.

This right is enshrined in English law. Section 7 of the Education Act 1996 provides that:

The parent of every child of compulsory school age shall cause him to receive efficient full-time education suitable-

(a) to his age, ability and aptitude, and

(b) to any special educational needs he may have, either by regular attendance at school or otherwise.

2.4 Thus, where a child is educated at home the parental responsibility for children's education, coupled with Hillingdon's responsibility to make sure that there is adequate provision for education in their areas, brings Hillingdon and parents into a relationship (as discussed in Part 4 of these guidelines).

Parental rights and responsibilities

2.5 Parents may decide to exercise their right to home-educate their child from birth and so the child does not therefore need to be enrolled at school. However, as noted above, this right requires the parents to provide an efficient education suitable to the age, ability and aptitude of the child and home educating may offer distinctive benefits for some children and young people. An "efficient" education is not defined in the Education Act 1996 but has been broadly described as an education that "achieves that which it sets out to achieve". A "suitable" education in relation to a child, means efficient full-time education suitable to his age, ability and aptitude and to any special educational needs he may have. It is therefore recognised that there are many approaches to educational provision and what is suitable for one child may not be for another.

2.6 There is no legal definition of "full-time". Children in school normally spend between 22 and 25 hours working at school each week. This measurement of 'contact time' is not relevant to home education where there is often almost continuous one-to-one contact and where education takes place outside 'normal school hours'. Nevertheless, the type of educational activity can be varied and flexible. It should be borne in mind that home-educating parents are not required to:

- teach the National Curriculum
- have a timetable
- have premises equipped to any particular standard
- mark work done by their child
- set hours during which education will take place
- have any specific qualifications
- cover the same syllabus as any school
- make detailed plans in advance
- observe school hours, days or terms
- give formal lessons
- reproduce school type peer group socialisation
- match school, age-specific standards
- provide a broad and balanced education
- formally assess progress or developmental objectives

However, Hillingdon can offer advice and support to parents on these matters if requested.

2.7 An important point to note is that there are many, equally valid, approaches to educational provision. Hillingdon considers a wide range of information from home educating parents. Hillingdon respects a wide variety of ethos' as long as the education provided is efficient and suitable. The way in which parents provide information is entirely up to them. The information may be in the form of a parental report, specific examples of learning e.g. pictures/paintings/models, diaries of work, projects, assessments, samples of work, books, educational visits etc. Some EHE advisers have been privileged to hear children read their own poetry, listen to musical instruments being played and even be an audience for a play.

2.8 Having made the commitment to home educate, parents may reasonably seek to provide elements of the following characteristics:

- consistent involvement and presence of parents or other significant carers
- consideration of a philosophy or ethos (not necessarily a recognised philosophy)
- Commitment and enthusiasm, and recognition of the child's needs, attitudes and aspirations
- opportunities for the child to be stimulated by their learning experiences
- access to resources/materials required to meet the objectives of the parents – such as paper and pens, books and libraries, arts and crafts materials, physical activity, ICT and the opportunity for appropriate interaction with other children and other adults.

Hillingdon's Responsibilities:

2.9 Hillingdon respects parents rights to electively home educate. This is a great commitment. Where Hillingdon is aware of home-educated children within our area, we will provide information for the parents or guardians who have chosen to home-educate (see paragraphs 4.5-4.6). Hillingdon will also wish to make it clear to parents that if they choose to home-educate, they assume financial responsibility for their child's education, including the cost of public examinations, and that the child must continue to receive suitable education until the end of 'compulsory education' (ie the last Friday in June in the academic year in which they reach age 16).

2.10 If information exists which may cast doubt on whether an "efficient and suitable education" can be provided, Hillingdon will seek to gather any relevant information that will assist in reaching a properly informed judgement. This will include seeking from the parents any further information that they wish to provide explaining how they intend to provide a suitable education for their child(ren) and the parents will be given the opportunity to address any specific concerns that the Hillingdon EHE teacher has. The child will also be given the opportunity, but not required, to attend any meeting that may be arranged or express his or her views in some other way.

2.11 If, on considering the educational provision, several of the suggestions detailed in the section headed 'Parents Rights and Responsibilities' appear to be lacking, Hillingdon may choose to further investigate whether or not there is sufficient evidence that an efficient and suitable education is, in fact, being provided. The findings of any investigation will be made available to the parents promptly, specifying the reasons for concluding that there are grounds for concern that a suitable education is not taking place. If Hillingdon has such concerns, and the parents, having been given a reasonable opportunity to address these concerns and report back to the education authority, have not done so, Hillingdon will consider instituting formal attendance procedures in accordance with the provisions of Section 437 of the Education Act 1996.

2.12 Under Section 437(1) of the Education Act 1996, LAs can intervene if they have good reason to believe that parents are not providing a suitable education. Hillingdon anticipates that this will only be necessary in a minority of cases. This section states that:

If it appears to a local authority that a child of compulsory school age in their area is not receiving suitable education, either by regular attendance at school or otherwise, they shall serve a notice in writing on the parent requiring him to satisfy them within the period specified in the notice that the child is receiving such education.

Section 437(2) of the Act provides that the period shall not be less than 15 days beginning with the day on which the notice is served. For the avoidance of doubt, this period commences on the second day after the letter was posted using first class post.

2.13 Once this notice has been served, Hillingdon will consider all educational evidence provided by the parents demonstrating how their child is receiving a suitable education. In the event that Hillingdon considers that the education being provided is not suitable, then it will issue a second notice in accordance with Section 437(3) of the 1996 Act which states:

If –

(a) a parent on whom a notice has been served under subsection (1) fails to satisfy the local authority, within the period specified in the notice, that the child is receiving suitable education, and

(b) in the opinion of the authority it is expedient that the child should attend school, the authority shall serve on the parent an order (referred to in this Act as a "school attendance order"), in such form as may be prescribed, requiring him to cause the child to become a registered pupil at a school named in the order.

2.14 Hillingdon sees the taking of the above measures as a last resort after all reasonable avenues have been explored to bring about a resolution of the situation. At any stage following the issue of the Order, parents may present evidence to Hillingdon that they are now providing a suitable and appropriate education and apply to have the Order revoked. However, if the Order remains in place and the parents do not comply with it, then Hillingdon can prosecute the parents in accordance with Section 443 of the Education Act 1996.

2.15 An Order continues to be in force for as long as the child is of compulsory school age. If there is a continued failure to register the child, Hillingdon EHE adviser & EWS has the option of referring to Social Care using a Common Assessment Framework. In exceptional circumstances, the case may be taken to the Family Proceedings Court instead of the Magistrates Court where an application can be made for an Education Supervision Order (ESO - under Section 36(5)a of the Children Act 1989). Where an ESO is in force with respect to a child, the duties of the child's parents under section 7 and 444 of the Education Act 1996 (duties to secure education of children and to secure regular attendance of registered pupils) are superseded by their duty to comply with any directions in force under the ESO.

2.16 However, parents' wishes to educate their children at home will be respected and, wherever possible, efforts will be made to resolve issues about provision by a process of ongoing dialogue before Section 437(3) is invoked. Only in extreme cases, where the education is clearly not efficient and suited to the age, ability and aptitude of the child, will an Order be served. More information about School Attendance Orders is contained in Ensuring Regular School Attendance paragraphs 6 to 16 (available at www.education.gov.uk/schools/pupilsupport/behaviour/attendance/a0010003/local-authority-duties-and-legal-measures-to-ensure-school-attendance).

2.17 Hillingdon also has the following additional responsibilities:

Section 10 of the Children Act 2004 sets out a statutory framework for cooperation arrangements to be made by local authorities with a view to improving the well-being of children in their area.

Section 11 of the 2004 Act sets out the arrangements to safeguard and promote the welfare of children. However, it is important to note that it does not place any additional responsibilities or responsibilities over and above Section 175 (1) of the Education Act 2002 as set out below.

Section 175 (1)

A local authority shall make arrangements for ensuring that their education functions are exercised with a view to safeguarding and promoting the welfare of children

2.18 All agencies working with children, young people and families are aware of Hillingdon's objective to ensure every child of compulsory school age is receiving a suitable education. However, Section 175(1) does not extend Hillingdon's functions themselves, only that in the course of the functions conferred upon us should consideration be given to safeguarding and promoting children's welfare. Section 175(1) does not, for example, give Hillingdon powers to enter the homes of, or otherwise see, children undertaking elective home education.

2.19 Section 436A of the Education Act 1996 places a duty on Hillingdon to make arrangements to identify children in their area who are not receiving full time education suitable to the child's age, ability, aptitude and any special educational needs they may have.

2.20 Whilst clearly this is the duty of all parents primarily to ensure that their child receives an efficient full time education, Hillingdon welcomes all cooperation and transparency in demonstrating this. Of course, the vast majority of Hillingdon parents love, nurture, support and protect their children without involvement from or interest from the Local Authority.

Part 3

Clear policies and procedures

3.1 All parties involved in home education should be aware of their roles, rights and responsibilities and be clear about the standards expected of them. Hillingdon's policy aims to be clear, transparent and easily accessible.

3.2 Hillingdon has a named officer who has responsibility for "education otherwise than at school". She receives parental notification of home education intention and maintains a home education list. She is currently with the Education Welfare Service (EWS)

3.3 Hillingdon is able to provide guidance for parents and carers who request it. In addition, Hillingdon can organise training on the law and home education methods for all their Education Officers who have contact with home-educating families in their area should the need be identified.

De-registration of the Child from School

3.4 Any procedures for dealing with home-educating parents and children must be fair, non-judgemental, clear, consistent and timely, in order to provide a good foundation for the development of trusting relationships.

3.5 First contact between Hillingdon and home educators often occurs when parents decide to home educate and approach the school (at which the child is registered) and/or the authority to seek guidance about withdrawing their child from school. It is important that this initial contact is constructive and positive. However, while parents must inform the school in writing of their decision, they are not legally required to inform Hillingdon about their intention to home educate unless they wish to remove a child from a special school (see section 3.13 onwards). However, Hillingdon strongly requests that families inform the nominated officer (EWS). Schools in receipt of such information are required to notify the LA by sharing it with the nominated officer (EWS).

3.6 De-registration of a child from a school in order to Electively Home Educate is covered by Regulation 8[1][d] of the Education [Pupil Registration][England] Regulations 2006. Parents who wish to home-educate their child who is registered at a maintained school or an independent school must inform the school formally and in writing of their intention to de-register. The school shall delete the child's name from their register from the date indicated in the written notification from the parents, guardians or legal carer, and inform Hillingdon EWS (giving the child's name and address) as soon as the ground for deletion is met in relation to that pupil, and in any event no later than deleting the pupil's name from the register as per Regulation 12[3] of the Education [Pupil Registration][England] Regulations 2006. Although they are under no obligation to do so, parents are encouraged to inform Hillingdon directly, to enable Hillingdon to check that the child's name has actually been removed from the school register.

3.7 Where the child is enrolled at a school, parents have a responsibility to inform that school in writing that they are withdrawing their child in order to educate them at home. Although parents are not legally obliged to notify Hillingdon of their intentions, it is recommended that they do so as early as possible, to ensure that support and advice can be offered as required or as requested. However, Hillingdon will bear in mind that, in these early stages, parents' proposals may not be detailed and they may not yet be in a position to demonstrate all the characteristics of an "efficient and suitable" educational provision (see 3.12 onwards). If this is the case, a reasonable timescale will be agreed for the parents/carers to submit their proposals. Mindful of the wishes of the majority of Hillingdon's EHE communities, Hillingdon will not require standard documentation from families. Hillingdon will hold a list of EHE families and children, when aware of them.

3.8 Hillingdon will assume that efficient educational provision is taking place, which is suitable for the child, unless there is evidence to the contrary. Where parents have notified Hillingdon or Hillingdon is otherwise made aware of a child's de-registration from school with the intention of being home educated, Hillingdon will acknowledge this notification.

3.9 The frequency with which Hillingdon will wish to contact parents to discuss their ongoing home education provision will vary depending on the individual circumstances of each family. It is for Hillingdon to decide how often to make contact with a family. However, Hillingdon will ordinarily make contact on an annual basis. Contact will normally be made by writing to the family to request an updated report or, if thought necessary, to seek a meeting. A written report will be made after such contact and copied to the family stating the strengths of provision and whether Hillingdon has any concerns about the education provision.

3.10 Where there are concerns about the efficiency or suitability of the education being provided for the child, more frequent contact may be required. Where concerns merit frequent contact, Hillingdon will discuss these concerns with the child's parents, with a view to helping them improve their provision in the best interests of the child. Such discussions will be conducted in the spirit of respect and partnership working to seek an outcome satisfactory to all, particularly the child/ren.

3.11 Enquiry may also be made as to whether children educated at home are members of Community Groups (e.g Faith Groups, Sports Clubs, Uniformed Groups like the Cadets or the Scouts, Drama Groups etc.). Should a family choose to have no contact with the Local Authority whatsoever, or the child have no alternative Community links, the Local Authority may attempt to visit the family at home, by appointment or not.

Access to the home

3.12 Parents are not legally required to give Hillingdon's EHE adviser access to their home. They may, for example, choose to meet a Hillingdon representative at a mutually convenient and neutral location instead, or may choose not to meet at all. This is respected by Hillingdon entirely. Parents can provide evidence that a child is receiving an efficient and suitable education in a number of ways. It should be in any form sufficient enough to convince a reasonable person of its appropriateness for the child's age, aptitude and ability. Parents might, for example:

- write a report
- provide samples of work
- invite the Hillingdon EHE teacher to their home, with or without the child being present
- meet the Hillingdon EHE teacher elsewhere, with or without the child
- have the educational provision endorsed by a recognized third party
- provide evidence in any other appropriate form.

Children with Special Educational Needs

3.13 Parents' right to educate their child(ren) at home applies equally where a child has special educational needs (SEN) ((see Section 7 of the Education Act 1996). Some children with special educational needs are statemented but others are not. Section 319 of the Education Act 1996 gives local authorities a power to arrange special educational provision otherwise than in school where this is appropriate.

3.14 Where a child has a statement of special educational needs and is home-educated, it remains Hillingdon's duty to ensure that the child's needs are met. The statement must remain in force and Hillingdon will ensure that the child's SEN needs are met.

3.15 If the parents' arrangements are suitable, Hillingdon is relieved of its duty to arrange the provision specified in the statement. If, however, the parents' attempt to educate the child at home results in provision that falls short of meeting the child's needs, then the parents are not making 'suitable arrangements' and Hillingdon cannot conclude that they are absolved of their responsibility to arrange the provision in the statement.

3.16 Even if Hillingdon is satisfied, we remain under a duty to maintain the statement and review it annually, following procedures set out in Chapter 9 of the SEN Code of Practice. Where Hillingdon is satisfied that the child's parents have made suitable arrangements it does not have to name a school in part 4 of the child's statement in accordance with Section 324(4A) of the Education Act 1996 though it will state the type of school it considers appropriate and go on to state that "parents have made their own arrangements under section 7 of the Education Act 1996".

3.17 The statement can also specify any provision that Hillingdon has agreed to make under section 319 to help parents to provide suitable education for their child at home. If the child to be deregistered is a pupil at a special school, the school must inform Hillingdon SEN team before the child's name can be deleted from the school roll and Hillingdon will need to consider whether everything is in place to make the home education suitable before amending part 4 of the child's statement.

3.18 A parent who is educating their child at home may ask Hillingdon SEN team to carry out a statutory assessment of their child's special educational needs and Hillingdon must consider the request within the same statutory timescales and in the same way as for all other requests. The views of the designated medical officer for SEN should be sought by Hillingdon where a child with a statement is educated at home because of difficulties related to health needs or a disability.

Part 4

Developing relationships

4.1 As noted in the Introduction, the central aim of this document is to assist Hillingdon and home educators to build effective relationships that function to safeguard the educational interests of children and young people; relationships that are rooted in mutual understanding, trust and respect.

4.2 Whilst there is no current legal obligation on Hillingdon or home educators to develop such relationships, doing so will often provide parents with access to support that is available (EHE adviser, web based provision and Education Welfare Officer) and allow Hillingdon to better understand parents' educational provision and preferences. A positive relationship will also provide a sound basis if Hillingdon is required to investigate assertions from any source that an efficient and suitable education is not being provided. This will be true whether or not parents are required to demonstrate that suitable home-education provision is being made available.

Acknowledging diversity

4.3 Parents' educational provision will reflect a diversity of approaches and interests. Some parents, especially those who have other children attending school, may wish to provide education in a formal and structured manner, following a traditional curriculum and using a fixed timetable that keeps to school hours and terms. Other parents may decide to make more informal provision that is responsive to the developing interests of their child. One approach is not necessarily any more efficient or effective than another. Although some parents may welcome general advice and suggestions about resources, methods and materials, Hillingdon will not specify a curriculum which parents must follow.

4.4 Children learn in different ways and at different times and speeds. It is appreciated that parents and their children might require a period of adjustment before finding their preferred mode/s of learning. Parents are not required to have any qualifications or training to provide their children with an appropriate education. Their commitment to providing an efficient education that is suitable for their child may be demonstrated by them providing some indication of their objectives and resources.

Providing information for parents

4.5 The provision of clear information has an important role to play in the promotion of positive relationships. Hillingdon provides written information and website links for home-educating parents that is clear and accurate and which sets out the legal position, and roles and responsibilities, in an unambiguous and non-judgemental way. Contact details for home education support organisations are also provided. A selection of these is included in Part 5. All written information is available to parents in community languages and alternative formats on request. Also see section 5.3

4.6 As noted at paragraph 3.2 Hillingdon will provide parents who are, or who are considering, home-educating with a named contact within Hillingdon who is familiar with home education policy and practice and has an understanding, respect and appreciation of a range of educational philosophies. Hillingdon may invite the parents to meet with our named EHE officer to discuss their provision. Any such meeting will take place at a mutually acceptable location and the child concerned should also be given the opportunity to attend that meeting, or otherwise to express his or her views. Either during such a meeting, or otherwise, the parents and Hillingdon will seek to consider and agree what future contact there will be between them.

Contact with parents and children

4.7 Hillingdon acknowledges and celebrates that learning takes place in a wide variety of environments and not only in the home. Where the education is taking place in the home, it is desirable but not essential for a Hillingdon officer to have the opportunity to see the child in that learning environment, to enable them to see the provision at first hand. Seeing the child responding to the educational provision of the parents will provide a strong indication that an efficient and suitable education is indeed being provided. Hillingdon does not, however, have a legal right of access to the home and the matter should not and will not be forced. Some parents may not feel comfortable in allowing an education officer access to their child or family home. Trusting relationships may need time to develop before a parent is happy to invite an officer to visit. It is only in the context of a supportive and trusting partnership that the opportunity to meet the child and visit the home will arise.

4.8 In any event, it should be and will be remembered that, where a parent elects not to allow access to their home or their child, this does not constitute a ground for concern about the education provision being made. Although it is recognised that the learning environment can have a bearing on the effectiveness of learning, Hillingdon will, in the vast majority of cases, be able to discuss and evaluate the parents' educational provision by alternative means. Parents might prefer, for example, to write a report, provide samples of work, have their educational provision endorsed by a third party (such as an independent home tutor) or provide evidence in some other appropriate form (see paragraph 3.12).

Safeguarding

4.9 The welfare and protection of all children, both those who attend school and those who are educated by other means, are of paramount concern and the responsibility of the whole community. As with school-educated children, safeguarding issues may arise in relation to home-educated children. If any safeguarding concerns come to light in the course of engagement with children and families, or otherwise, these concerns should immediately be referred to Social Care Hillingdon and/or Police, using the telephone & followed up with a CAF (Common Assessment Framework).

4.10 In terms of safeguarding the welfare of children who are educated at home by parents (and all Hillingdon children), all agencies will work together. Hillingdon Council Officers will take a lead on these issues because of our legal Safeguarding duty to Hillingdon children. Thus, when a practitioner or professional becomes aware that a child is being educated at home and there are grounds for concern about the welfare of the child, local information sharing arrangements will help them inform Hillingdon EHE adviser.

4.11 Concerns may arise where a child has been referred to Children's Social Care or the police for child protection reasons and the matter is under investigation, or where a child has been assessed as in need, or where the child is the subject of a supervision order. Hillingdon will also apply to the Court for a child assessment under the Children Act 1989, if we have reasonable cause to do so.

Local authorities safeguarding responsibilities are specified in sections 17 and 47 of the Children Act 1989 and on a more strategic level in sections 10 and 11 of the Children Act 2004. The powers and duties under these provisions enable local authorities to insist on seeing children to enquire about their welfare where there are grounds for concern. (see paragraph 2.17)

In addition to these provisions, section 175 (1) of the Education Act 2002 also imposes a clear duty on Local Authorities to safeguard and promote the welfare of children when exercising their educational functions. (see paragraphs 2.17 and 2.18)

While section 175 (1) of the 2002 Act is consistent with the safeguarding duties in the 1989 and 2004 Children Act legislation it does not give local authorities powers to enter the home of, or otherwise see children for the purposes of monitoring the provision of elective home education or for the purpose of monitoring the welfare of such children.

Hillingdon can in accordance with its safeguarding duties insist on seeing the child receiving EHE where there are reported child protection concerns.

4.12 Parents may choose to employ other people to educate their child, though they themselves will continue to be responsible for the education provided. They will also be responsible for ensuring that those whom they engage are suitable persons to have access to children. Parents will therefore wish to satisfy themselves by taking up appropriate references. Hillingdon would also recommend that parents apply to the Criminal Records Bureau for enhanced disclosure of pertinent records.

Reviewing policies and procedures

4.13 Hillingdon wishes to review all of these procedures and practices in relation to home education on a regular basis in consultation and partnership with parents to see if improvements can be made to further develop relationships and meet the needs of children and parents. Effective reviews, together with the sensitive handling of any complaints, will help to secure effective partnership. This policy will be reviewed annually as part of the regular cycle of review by the Education Welfare Service and the Hillingdon Safeguarding Children's Board. Exceptional review will take place in light of any changes in law or guidance.

Part 5

Support and resources

5.1 When parents elect to home-educate their children they assume financial responsibility for their children's education. There are a number of sources of advice and practical assistance available to such parents.

5.2 Hillingdon does not receive funding to support home educated families. As a minimum, Hillingdon will provide written information (which is also available through the internet) on home education that is clear and accurate and which sets out the legal position (see previous paragraphs 4.5-4.6). An information leaflet for EHE families is also available on the Hillingdon website along with details of national and local support groups (when known).

5.3 Annual visits are available by qualified senior teachers to advise and support EHE parents with academic input (not necessarily based on the National Curriculum).

5.4 Hillingdon has an officer with specific responsibility for supporting EHE families. She can be contacted on 01895 250858 educationwelfareservice@hillingdon.gov.uk 52 weeks per year, Monday to Friday 9.00 a.m until 5.00 p.m.

5.5 Additionally available in Hillingdon;

- Provision of reading or lending libraries with resources for use with the children, on home schooling and related topics
- Admission into community programmes (including local authority owned community and sports facilities)
- Access to resource centres (including local school resources where feasible)
- National Curriculum materials and curricula offered by other educational institutions
- Information about educational visits and work experience

The National Curriculum

5.6 Although home-educated children are not legally required to follow the National Curriculum it is thought that a number do, especially if the home-educated child has siblings attending school.

5.7 In addition, the DfE website at www.dfe.gov.uk will allow access to the National Curriculum and associated schemes of work, aimed at setting standards across all schools. Some documents are also distributed via Departmental publications which can be accessed through links on The Stationery Office site at www.the-stationery-office.co.uk or by telephoning Prolog on 0845 602 2260.

Flexi-schooling

5.8 "Flexi-schooling" or "flexible school attendance" is an arrangement between the parent and the school where the child is registered at school in the normal way but where the child attends the school only part time; the rest of the time the child is marked as Code B in the school register i.e. present at approved education but off-site. This is sometimes done as a short term measure for a particular reason. "Flexi-schooling" is a legal option provided that the head teacher at the school concerned and, in many cases, the EWS as well, agree to the arrangement. Regular and planned reviews are required for this arrangement. Some of the advantages and disadvantages of "flexi-schooling" are referred to on the Home Education UK's website at www.home-education.org.uk/articles-flexi-school.pdf.

Hillingdon's role in supporting work experience

5.9 Work experience is not a statutory requirement. However, usually all Key Stage 4 pupils undertake work experience in the last two years of compulsory schooling. Over 95% of Key Stage 4 pupils go on placements each year. The law relating to the employment of children generally places statutory restrictions and prohibitions on employers in this regard. But where the employment is in accordance with arrangements made by Hillingdon EBP or a governing body these restrictions will generally not apply¹ where the work experience is arranged only with a view to providing pupils with work experience as part of their education in their last two years of compulsory schooling.

5.10 Children educated at home have no entitlement to participate in work experience under arrangements made by Hillingdon but we wish to encourage the parents of such children to explore this path if this is of interest to home educating parents and carers. Where home-educated children do participate in such schemes, consideration should be given to the extent to which such children are covered by, for example, insurance provision.

5.11 Schools and Hillingdon have a prime responsibility for ensuring pupils are placed in a safe environment for their work experience. Employers are responsible for carrying out risk assessments in respect of young people on work experience placements as if they were members of their staff.

Other Issues

Truancy Sweeps

5.12 When planning and running truancy sweeps, Hillingdon EWS will refer to the DfE "Guidance for Truancy Sweeps" and the Home Office guidance "Police Power to Remove Truants".

5.13 Those taking part in the sweeps, including police officers, should be fully familiar with this guidance. They should be aware that there is a range of valid reasons why school-age children may be out of school. In particular, they may encounter children who are educated at home and that these children can have legitimate and positive reasons to be out and about. By the same token, home-educating parents need to be aware that professionals involved in truancy sweeps will seek to verify any information given to them. To make sure this is a fast, non-invasive and efficient process, Hillingdon maintains a list of all school-age children known to them who are home-educated. This list is then checked by Hillingdon staff as part of a truancy sweep.

Traveller Children

5.14 Hillingdon is sensitive to the distinct ethos and needs of Traveller communities. Hillingdon's duty to ensure that children residing in this area are provided with suitable education (described elsewhere in these guidelines) applies equally to Traveller children residing with their families on temporary or unauthorised sites. Although Travelling children of school age have the same legal right to a school place as anyone else, it is obviously practically difficult to claim or seek these rights without a permanent or legal place to stop.

¹ see section 560 of the Education Act 1996, as amended by section 112 of the School Standards and Framework Act 1998

Therefore, when a Traveller family with children of school age move into the area they are strongly encouraged to contact School Admissions online through Hillingdon libraries.

5.15 Traveller children can be educated at home in the same way as other home-educated children. Therefore should it be necessary, before deciding to prosecute parents for failing to provide a “suitable and efficient” education for their children, Hillingdon may consider whether it would be appropriate to take the alternative route of making an application in the family proceedings court for an education supervision order (ESO) which would last one year and would enable an EWO to advise, assist and befriend both the child and the parents. Where an ESO is in force with respect to a child, the duties of the child’s parents under section 7 and 444 of the Education Act 1996 (duties to secure education of children and to secure regular attendance of registered pupils) are superseded by their duty to comply with any directions in force under the ESO.

5.16 Further guidance can be obtained from the DfE Guide to Good Practice on the education of Traveller children – “Aiming High: Raising the Achievement of Gypsy Traveller Pupils” which can be obtained from DCSF Publications (reference DfES/0443/2003). Another (external) source of information is www.gypsy-traveller.org/education/ or <http://www.education.gov.uk/schools/pupilsupport/inclusionandlearnersupport/mea/improvingachievement/a0012528/gypsy-roma-and-traveller-achievement>

Qualifications options

The following information sets out some of the options available to home-educating families who wish to provide opportunities for their children to study for recognised qualifications. This is not an exhaustive list, but sets out the main options available and provides contact details for relevant organisations. Please note that the following information is also liable to change from time to time.

Enrolment at a Further Education College

Some colleges may, at the discretion of the Principal, be willing to accept children of school age for full and part-time courses. This approach has the advantage that all the work and entry for qualifications is organised by the college, but it does require at least some attendance at classes which will not appeal to all home-educating families. If a student enrolls at a FE college, their parents will normally be liable to pay all of the course fees themselves. Colleges also have the discretion to waive fees, which they may do for low income families.

Self-Study

Many home educating families prefer not to enrol for attendance at a further education college but choose instead to work independently towards recognised qualifications. Because of compulsory internal controlled assessment components, there are many subjects and qualifications which are not available to external candidates unless an appropriate arrangement can be made with an approved centre which meets with the examining board's requirements. Some centres and examining boards may be willing to accept coursework which has been marked and authenticated by a private tutor. Thus, families who study for qualifications from home will need to:

- contact the relevant examination board to find out about their requirements;
- register with an approved centre for their child to be presented for the qualification; and
- pay a registration fee for each subject their child will take.

It may also be possible for a group of home educators to consider seeking approved status in their own right.

Correspondence Courses

Correspondence courses can be an option for students who prefer to work independently, though they will be required in most cases to follow a structured curriculum and programme of work. Correspondence courses offer a wide range of qualifications at different levels and the organisations offering these courses will advise about arrangements which need to be made for registering with an examination centre and for marking and authenticating coursework. The cost of this option varies depending on the organisation and the qualification chosen, but can prove expensive.

There are an increasing number of organisations offering open and distance learning courses. The following contacts provide a useful start in finding a suitable course and organisation:

- The Open and Distance Learning Quality Council (ODLQC) is an independent body which accredits open and distance learning courses. The ODLQC produces a free information leaflet which lists all approved organisations and their courses. Contact:

Alternative qualifications

The internal assessment component of many UK qualification courses such as Standard Grades, National Qualifications and GCSEs can restrict the choice available to home educated students. The following qualifications have, however, been identified as particularly suited to home study students as they are not dependent on internal assessment and moderation.
