- I have quite a lot of friends and my daughters live nearby. They get any shopping I want which they drop on my doorstep. But I've been alone for over two weeks I feel like a leper. They keep in touch by text and don't stop to talk outside. I'm feeling lethargic even though I have a garden I can't motivate myself to work in it.
I have a dog which I walk twice a day (I feel it is OK as I don't go out otherwise) . I do meet other Dogwalkers and we stay 9' apart, the only people I get to have a conversation with.

I'm really lucky compared to other people but nothing can replace a hug from my two grandchildren.

I have lung cancer, (Ablation was cancelled) but I'm fretting about what might happen to them and everyone else I know and love.

I don't feel I can't tell anyone how I am feeling for fear of worrying them.

- Unable to see a GP for non Coronavirus related needs.
Having to make multiple trips for food due to lack of supply
- I haven't been able to work, many of my customers are elderly (I'm a gardener).
So I have no income.
- I gave birth to my first child on the 16th March. We were kept in Hillingdon Hospital for five days. On our first day at home a wonderful midwife visited us and did the checks on me and my son, a few days later we had a call to say our next visit wouldn't happen and we should go to them at the health centre. We did that and were signed off by the midwives.
I then received a phone call from the health visitor, she said it was instead of a visit. We talked about my son a little and she gave me some phone numbers in case we had any issues. But other than that said there would be no visits and no clinics.
This has left us very alone while going through this first period with our first child. It's worrying that no one is going to be keeping an eye on the development of our son. We obviously are doing everything we think is right, but as it's our first child this is all very new to us and we feel very unsupported.
This is also because our GPs office is not allowing any appointments and the phone is incredibly difficult to get through on and you only get to speak to the receptionist.
I underwent a Caesarean section and needed painkillers after my release from hospital. It was very difficult to get hold of the surgery and when I did I did manage to get a prescription from them, only having dealt with the receptionist, and it took five phone calls over the course of the day as it was sent to a pharmacy. Two days later I needed a couple more days and they said they'd sort a prescription for later that day. They didn't and then shut, as it was the weekend I couldn't contact them as they were shut and so I spent over the course of the day over three hours trying to get NHS 111 to help me. They did eventually help me and the pharmacy we're incredibly helpful across both days of problems and difficulties by my GP surgery.
During my time in Hillingdon Hospital, I was kept on a ward, my son in Neonatal, the staff were incredibly supportive. My partner was able to stay with me on the ward, which was incredibly important for his support both mentally and physically. Dealing with the separation from our baby at first and then when we did have the baby on the ward with us physically looking after the baby as after my C Section I was physically limited. I think as we were discharged they were banning partners/husbands from the wards, I honestly don't think I could have coped very well, and would have needed a huge amount more of the midwives and nurses time if I didn't have my partner with me. I couldn't even pick my baby up out of the cot without his assistance. The banning of partners will have a huge impact on the experience and needs of the women on the maternity wards.

- although not classified as a 'vulnerable adult' as I don't have cancer or heart problems, I am nevertheless housebound with kidney & back problems so unable to go shopping for food. I live alone so this is a problem.
- i had symptoms in December, put it down to flu. I was left with a pain at the top of my left ribs. 13th February the dry hacking cough started again, five days later I rang Gp as the pain was so bad. GP sent with a letter to Aand E, high temperature, pneumonia, severe pain in chest when breathing. Hospital ran different tests, bloods Xray etc. Sent home with antibiotics, spent next 7 days barely able to move, couldn't eat, headaches, lost sense of taste and smell, sleeping constantly chesty cough rattling chest I don't remember most of the first 3 weeks. Still not right by today.
- We are all very stressed
- My friend had it
- My partner has had a cough since 11th February and we would like an anti body test to see if it is Covid 19.
- My Mother in law caught Covid 19 from either carers or health care workers visiting at home. They did not have PPE. She died at Hillingdon Hospital.
- Being inside all the time you can't take children out for a walk you can't take them shopping so what do you do
- Feel alone
- Nearly driven me mad with the restrictions; trying to find enough food and supplies; trying to follow the distancing rules. I am obsessed with any news about Covid19, how many people are ill and upset constantly about people's suffering and the numbers of deaths. Stressed at been separated from family members. I have lost track of time and day since been trapped at home.
- Anxiety is high, loss of family interaction is low and fear is rife. Not knowing who or what to believe is confusing and un-nerving with little positive news to give much hope...having anxiety and a daughter here a sufferer, times are hard.
- My daughter works on the front line at Hillingdon hospital this is worrying she is a single parent and this has caused concerns
- Because the Coronavirus we like other people stay at home, not working
- Had letter from the doctor that my husband is extremely vulnerable, cannot log into uk gov website as looks he doesn't qualify, he is 78 and has diabetes. Wants a home delivery of food from Iceland. I am 78.. our daughter comes over from Staines does our shopping when she has finished work . Once a week . But wanted to save her the journey x
- My husband and I have both had coronavirus and had the ambulance called twice, the paramedics were fantastic , thankfully we're both on the mend although I do worry about my daughter who works for the NHS
- Self isolation. Took a couple of weeks to get a shopping delivery slot.
- my husband is in a care home and I haven't seen him for over A month, we would cost every day

- As a tutor I have lost 1/3 of my pupils and I have had to learn to deliver lessons on line. This involves more work and I have reduced my fee so altogether I am losing income . I am also an artist . The open studio event where I usually sell about £1000 of work has been cancelled and I cannot organise any alternative exhibitions because of social distancing . I am unable to get any food deliveries from any of the supermarkets so I use local small supermarkets which I have to visit frequently as I have no car.
- difficulties getting supplies of food and meds. Also very reluctant to get regular blood test in Hillingdon hospital.
- Being alone
- I live with my parents who are 80 and 87 I'm finding it hard to get online shopping most supermarkets are booked 3-4 weeks in advanced I managed to get Iceland delivery but that is now booked up for next five days
